BIOGRAPHY OF COMEDIAN AND ACTOR DAVE GOLDSTEIN

You may recognize comedian and actor Dave Goldstein from one of his many appearances on  NBC's Late Night with Conan O'Brien, including a particularly memorable role as a naked cop directing traffic in front of the Metropolitan Museum of Art on 5th Avenue in New York City.

His stage act, which has been praised by The New York Post ("...funny") and The Asbury Park Press ("...his comic star is on the rise!"), is a blend of original intelligent writing and inspired live riffs. He has performed stand up comedy on The Comedy Network, XM Satellite Radio, The National Lampoon Radio Network, and Comedy.net.

Most recently, Dave was honored to perform for our troops on a comedy tour of U.S. Army bases in Europe. He's opened theater performances for Dennis Miller, handled the audience warm up for  Drew Carey's CBS TV show The Power of Ten, and been read on the Sports Illustrated website. He was also an original member of the improv group Far Beneath Gotham in New York City. Dave, whose career has taken him across the United States, Canada and Europe, first performed publicly at 13 as a guest of disc jockey New Orleans Slick on WFEC in his home town of Harrisburg, PA.

Dave Goldstein has also been seen in commercials for Sprint, New England Bank (also naked, why?),  ABC Sports, and in a print campaign for Pfizer Pharmaceuticals. Dave, who was also the voice of Madacy Home Video on the Howard Stern Radio Show, has also had a number of essays on international affairs published.
